Healthcare

It is not only important that the Healthcare industry maintain a healthy environment for the well-being of patients, visitors, and staff - it also makes a statement about the facility's reputation. We adhere to and exceed the highest standards of cleanliness and safety in this critical field.

Healthcare Acquired Infections (HAIs)

In the medical community, the top cleaning priority is to prevent the spread of Healthcare Acquired Infections (HAIs). Special attention is given to often overlooked, high-touch areas: tables, phones, door handles, light switches, remote controls and computer keyboards, as well as to the top, front, sides, headboard, mattress, frame and side rails of patient beds.

Reduce Risk

Strict cleaning procedures must be followed in order to remove biological contamination from equipment surfaces. This reduces the risk of cross-contamination incidents from occurring- whether from patient to patient, from patients to healthcare workers, or from patients to visitors. We are highly trained to perform all cleaning services safely and in full compliance with OSHA standards.

Dialysis Center Program

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), recommends the use of a Dialysis Station Routine Disinfection Checklist (American Medical News, 2013). We comply with this two-step process that ensures dialysis station safety, including proper disconnection and discarding of tubing, emptying of priming buckets, safe disposal of single-use supplies, disinfection of all surfaces, hygienic glove disposal, and hygienic hand washing protocols.

Cleaner & Greener

While medical-grade cleaning cannot be 100 percent green due to the use of disinfectants to kill unwanted microorganisms, the use of greener cleaning products where possible can provide a healthier environment for patients to recover and for staff to work. We strive to use environmentally friendly cleaning products in our clients' healthcare facilities whenever practical.
